Correct
tire inflation
depends on
the vehicle
manufacturer.

Check
inflation once
a month when
temperature
is cool.

Alignment
and rotation
prevent
uneven
tread wear
on tires.

Put a
penny
in the groove of your tire. If you can see
all of Lincoln's head,
then it is time to
replace your tires.

Check
your car's
fuel system
regularly or
when you
smell gas.

If you hear
sloshing
noises in your
fuel tank, have
it checked
immediately.

Fuel filters
are the most important
component
of your car's
fuel system.

Fuel pump
pressure
depends on your car. It can range from 30 psi to 60 psi.

Routine

inspection including checking belts and rotating tires should be done every 10,000 miles.

Every
30,000 miles
spark plugs, distributor cap and rotor, PCV valve and oxygen sensors should be replaced.

Once a year

it's recommended to have your brakes, hoses, clamps, battery and brake fluid checked.

Coolant

system flush and a battery electrolyte level check should be done every two years.

Low
coolant levels
could mean problems
with the thermostat,
heater control valve,
or heater core.

Low on
refrigerant?
It will either need
to be drained and
replaced with fresh
refrigerant
or topped off.

Antifreeze,
also known as coolant,
keeps the water in your radiator and engine from freezing.

A typical car
heating
system will
blow air that is between 75° F and 100° F.
